WORK OF CONGRESS ALL MAPPED OUT

MANY BILLS AWAITING FINAL SETTLEMENT.

The Dingley Measure in the Hands of The Senate—Pacific Funding Legislation Likely to Be of Great Interest—Other Bills That Will Be Presented.

Washington, Nov. 30.—It is improbable that the house at the coming session of congress, which begins a week from today, will dispose of much of the proposed legislation which encumbers its calendars. Little is usually accomplished at the short session, beyond the passage of the regular supply bills.

The question of legislation for additional revenues for the government will depend on the senate, to which body the house sent the Dingley bill almost a year ago. If it should be impossible, or deemed inexpedient, to press that measure through the senate, there is a possibility that the proposal to increase the revenues by an additional tax on beer or the imposition of a duty on tea and coffee, may take tangible form, and, if so, such legislation must originate, under the constitution, in the lower branch of congress.

There are on the several calendars of the house 1,465 bills reported from the various committees, and the proportion which will pass at the coming session must be necessarily small.

The private bills number 1,100, but there are also 256 bills on the calendar on the state of the union and 99 public bills on the regular house calendar. Some of these are of very great public importance, and those interested will no doubt do all in their power to secure action upon them.

The powers lodged in the hands of the committee on rules, which give its members control of the house programme, will make that committee the practical arbiter of what shall be submitted to the house for its action. That committee is composed as at present constituted of the speaker, Mr. Henderson of Iowa, Mr. Dalzell of Pennsylvania and Mr. McMillen of Tennessee.

The bill, which in many respects is of most interest and which will press hardest for consideration is the Pacific railway funding bill. The bonds guaranteed by the government are payable early in the coming year, and either an extension or a foreclosure stares the roads in the face. The friends of the Nicaragua canal are also bending every energy to secure action on the bill reported by Mr. Doolittle, which provides for a guaranty by the United States of $100,000,000 of bonds for the construction of the canal.

The Loud bill, to cure the abuses of the law relating to second-class mail matter, under which newspaper matter is transmitted at 1 cent a pound, and which has been the subject of much criticism of the postoffice department because of the advantage taken of the law in various ways for the transmission of books and pamphlets, will also be pressed, as will the Pickler service fusion bill, which occupies a favorable position on the calendar as a privileged report.

Among the other bills are the immigration bill, the Chickering bill, for ascertaining the feasibility and cost of a ship canal from the great lakes to the Hudson; several important public land bills, the bills for the admission of the territories, and many others of especial interest to particular localities. There are also several important measures in the senate which might come over to the house for consideration.

Must Know Latin in Order to Teach.

Hagerstown, Ind., Nov. 30.—The state superintendent of public instruction has sent a letter to each member of the legislature in which he asks their support of a bill he will cause to be introduced at the coming session. The measure will provide that Latin be taught in the common schools if any pupil shall desire to study that language, and that all applicants for teachers' licenses be compelled to pass an examination in Latin before a certificate is issued. Strong opposition to the bill has developed among teachers, and a fund is being raised to employ a lobby to defeat the measure.

Austria Adopts an American Idea.

Washington, Nov. 30.—Naval ordnance officers are elated over the information which has come from the naval attache at Berlin that the Austrian military authorities have adopted for their small arms the same caliber which is used in the American navy. it is stated that the highest authority in the country on magazine rifles states impartially that caliber 1236 is the best; that anything smaller gives practical difficulties not yet overcome, and that anything larger is inferior in ballistic results.

Navy Short of Men.

New York, Nov. 30.—There are not enough men available in the navy to man the ships in commission and, in consequence, many of the vessels are in a crippled condition. Recruits have been so slow that not a sufficient number of men could be got together to make up the deficit caused by the large number of desertions.

THE DINGLEY BILL.

Senator Gear Believes There Will Be an Extra Session.

Burlington, Iowa, Nov. 30.—Senator John H. Gear expressed the belief that the Dingley bill will not be passed, as the republicans have not a majority in the senate, and the members from the silver states who placed the free-silver rider on the bill in the last session will insist on the same thing again, and the silver democrats will probably aid them. The thing to do, said he, is for the house to report a disagreement, asking for a committee of conference. This will get it before the two houses. Whether the house will do this remains to be seen.

Senator Gear thnks there will be an extra session at an early date, provided the present congress fails to pass a revenue bill. A tariff bill will be taken up and probably passed. This bill will be a modified revision of the tariff. He does not think the money question will be touched on at this session, but speaks in favor of the plan to refund our bonds at a low rate of interest, thus gradually disposing of our greenbacks.

Bloomington, Ill., Nov. 30.—The service Sunday afternoon in memory of Rev. No allusion to suicide was made by Elder Stevens, Dr. Craft or President Wilder, who also spoke. It is understood that Mrs. Miller still believes that her husband was murdered, the verdict that he committed suicide not yet having been communicated to her.

Deed of an Escaped Lunatic.

Marion, O., Nov. 30.—Henry Powers escaped from the insane asylum at Columbus Oct. 30. Sunday, about 5 o'clock, while the Powers family were at breakfast, Powers went to the barn, secured an old musket and blew off the top of hs wife's head. Three of the children escaped to a neighbor's house, leaving an infant of fourteen months in bed. After killing his wife, Powers reloaded the musket, went into a potato patch 300 yards away, and shot himself. The eldest child, a girl of 15 years, re-entered the house and carried off the baby. After shooting himself, the maniac walked back to the house and fell dead beside his wife's body.

The dockers at Lehe, Bremenhaven, Geeestemunde and Nordenham have decided to refuse to unload vessels sent to be discharged at the lower Weser ports on account of the strike.

The Hamburger Nachrichten appeals to the Hamburg Athletic association's members to act as dockers in the emergency presented by the strike and so prevent the ruin of the trade of the town. The Vorwaerts declares that the ship owners have appealed to the government to send marines to take the places of the striking dockers. The stock dockers and warehouse unions have decided to refuse to discharge the cargoes of Hamburg vessels which have been loaded by non-union men.

Many similar assertions, the minister said, would be apt to be made during the proceedings before the arbitration tribunal.

The Venezuelan cabinet crisis has delayed the presentation of the arbitration treaty to congress, but it is likely that the full text of the treaty will soon be reported, when it will be promptly published in the official gazette.

SOME THINGS THAT WERE SAID IN THE LOCAL CHURCHES SUNDAY

FIRST M. E. CHURCH

Last evening Rev. H. W. Thompson took as his text Thes. 1, 9:e0. The city of Thessalonica was a seaport town formerly called Therma and after being destroyed was rebuit by the son-in-law of Philip of Macedon. In the year 51 or 42 Paul visited this city and the portion af Scripture which was read was concerning the success of this visit. Their influence like Solomon's spread throughout the surrounding countries, so our influence once started will spread and never end. All things will be changed but not destroyed. There is usually a class ready to oppose religion and often with violent means, so it was in Thessalonica and Paul and others were obliged to leave, yet the church grew and the spreading of its influence was a commendation of their faithfulness. Paul speaks of some very estimable qualities which they possessed, their success showing work of faith, labor of love, and patience of hope. Patience is a very commendable quality of often through lack of patience Satan gains a victory This example of the Thessalonians ought to be a rebuke to some of the milk and water and slipshod work of today. Some think that to read or listen to an entertaining essay is all that is required but this is not the teaching of the gospel, men cannot slip into the church and become true christians without this change.

Paul did not want the profession without the possession of this change nor is it wanted today. All should ask ourselves "do you know you have passed from death unto life?" If we have not experienced this change we should go to the physician who can cope with the disease, sin. Our lives ought ever to show this change. We may doubt one who professes to be a christian yet by their conduct serves the world. Our bodies are the Holy Ghost. To come to Christ we must give up entirely to Christ, claiming nothing of our ourselves, pleading nothing but the merits of the great physician. With some their all is culture.

The Origin of Culture.

They say religion was all right in the time of Paul, Martin Luther and John Wesley, but we are now living in an age of culture, What is the origin of culture? Our answer is the Bible.

Culture is good, and brings us gain. but with it we cannot purchase our salvation. If culture can accomplish so much why don't they send it to the canibals? For the very reason that for culture they do not care to run the risk of playing the role of the soup-bone.

Paul said, accepting christianity is the giving up of idols and all that stands between them and God. Did you ever think that there are idolaters in Americas. Some idolize their pocket-books, some cigars and some themselves. Business and religion should go hand in hand. There are theusands of ways we can show this religion. We should always show that we have been with Christ and learned of him.

ALL SOULS CHURCH.

At the Peoples'church yesterday Pastor Southworth outlined "The real Work of the Real Church." Among other things he said:

A real church has never been more satisfactorily defined than by the London editor of the Review of Reviews, who says—"A real church is a union of all who love, in the service of all who suffer."

Phillip Brooks says virtually the same thing though not so forcibly, I think. He says: "The true notion of a church is a home for struggling men, all seeking truth together, each helping all the rest, the past teaching the present, the present correcting the errors of the past and adding to its wisdom * * * each member of such a church accepting what truth he comes to accept on the approval of his own conscience."

And Bishop Phillip Brook's successor, the present rector of Trinity church, Boston, says "the church should be a practical instrument for bringing all that is best in man and society to its best."

And John Ruskin says "There is the true church wherever one hand meets another helpfully; and that is the only holy or Mother church which ever was or ever shall be."

Now here are four great modern thinkers (not any one of them a Unitarian) all saying the same thing—that the real church is a company of men and women who meet together for practical service to the world. It is the union of those who want to do good and to get good.

Modern Idea of the Church.

Now this is really a modern idea of the church, or rather it is Jesus' idea modernized. The teachings of that Gallilean Master of Religion all indicate that the church (or as he called it "the Kingdom of God") is to be "a union of those who love." Real love which expresses itself in practical ways was the text of discipleship. "Ye are my friends if ye do the things I command you. And this is my commandment—that ye love one another."

Not many centuries after the origin of Christianity the church was run aground on sacramentarian sand-bars and theological rocks. Its unity was destroyed. It was broken up into sects and schisms. And for hundreds of years the church has been out-of touch with human thought, human interests, human needs. It has wasted its time in mere ritualistic and doctrinal efforts. And a large percentage of human beings have grown to feel that the church as an institution is a dead letter, has outlived its usefulness, and can be dispensed with without loss. They have to a large extent abandoned ecclesiasticism. The priest has ceased to be as impressive and as dominant a figure in the world as in other ages.

People do not think of the church in the old way—as a refuge to which they must flee from the temptations a sin cursed-world. They do not think of it as a life boat put off from the heavenly shore to save from the wreck of the world a few sinking souls. All such ideas of the church as a supernatural establishment have largely been abandoned.

The Real Church.

Today we think of the church as an educational, social, benevolent organization and as an organized religious effort to advance the happiness and progress of the world. The real church—the contemporaneous church, the church up-to-date and alive is not a doctrinal combine of a liturgical association.

It is free from theoligical and ecclesiastical limitations. Its raison d'etre is service. It is not a union of those who agree to believe alike; but a union of those who agree to do something. The real church is an ganized activity. It has a real work. Its great anxiety is not what must we unite to believe; but what must we unite to do. Its great anxiety is not how we can convert the world to our system of faith; but how can we so organize the moral and spiritual forces as to render them the greatest possible power for good.

This then is my answer to the question, "What is the Real Church?" It is the conscience and moral aspirations of a community crystalized into working form.

It is the united effort of those who love goodness and truth, at work for the practical betterment of the world.

Such a church would have a creed—a real working-creed; not a theological or dogmatic creed; but a humanitarian and philanthropic creed; a creed that would read something like this:

"Our religion is to do good,
Do all the good you can,
In all the ways you can,
To all the people you can,
At all the times you can,
As long as ever you can."

The membership of such a church would include everyone who "really desires to get good and do good." It would be a church for "all souls" in the broadest sense of the word, with absolutely no limitations to its fellowship; an open church and a free church—a church of the people, by the people, and for the people.

Work Not Always Direct.

The real work of the real church is not always direct work; but often indirect. We do things through others. As a church we can give what influence we have in support of the good work which is undertaken outside. Better than having a kindergarten and manual training schools of our own—we can encourage the idea of incorporating such work in our public school system. We can encourage the wise use of of our public library and through our study clubs now, we can cultivate the taste for pure literary work and careful study. We can exert an uplifting influence upon the public press. We can lift the tone of social life. We can study the problems of the poor, and how the evils of their condition can be ameliorated. We can co-operate with the Associated Benevolent work of the city and with the humane society. And in all questions of municipal reforms. we can arouse and educate public opinion. The word from the pulpit can be made to echo and re-echo until those who have been afraid to hear it, or have turned from it in anger, will be brought to see its helpfulness and deep religious character. We can continually urge the larger, more humane more Christ-like idea of a religious unity—a bringing together of the dismembered fragments of christanity. We can stand as the advocates of an all-inclusive organization of the moral and spiritual forces of the city. We can continue to urge our kindly but unmistakable protest against sectarian divisions—and some day, when the children of the present have become the fathers and mothers of the future, our work now will bear its fruit in a religious emancipation from the entanglements of creed and ritual.

Janesville Needs The Work.

Friends, the city of Janesville needs the work this church can do, needs it now as much or more than ever in the past. Small as it is, weak as it is, limited as are its resources—this church is today the only religious organization to which everyone, without

RULING THAT BREAKS THE WITHAM WILL

AMPLE PRECEDENT FOR THE $5,000 BEQUEST.

Text of The Supreme Court Decision in The Well Known Janesville Case—Questions Involved Are of Interest From Several Points of View.

"Indeed * * * the vagueness is in some respects essential to the good gift of dublic charity and the public charity begins where uncertainity on the part of the recipient begins."

This is a significant sentence in the Ward Witham will case.

The case is an important one to Janesville people not only because it concerns the creation of the five thousand dollar fund for Rock County orphans but alsobecause of its bearing upon several bequests of similar nature.

One great objection against the Witham will was that the provisions were vague. The supreme court answered this objection by saying "The scheme of charity is definite and clear. It is only the benedciaries who are uncertain. It must be considered to be a valid, charitable bequest."

The ruling as to the executien of a trust by a trustee appointed by the court in the place of the one named in the will is also interesting.

The opinion of the supreme court in full is as follows:

Mary A. G. Sawtelle, Respondent, vs. Lorenzo Witham et al., Respondent and John G. Rexford as trustee, etc., Appellant.

The action is for the construction of a provision of the will of Ward Witham, late of the city of Janesville, deceased. The paragraph of which construction is asked is as follows:

I give, devise and bequeath, to my executors the sum of five thousand dollars, in trust nevertheless for the following uses and purposes: said sum is by my said executors to be invested n some good interest-bearing securities, and the net yearly income thereof, shall be used and applied by my said executors to the support, maintenance and education, or aiding in the support, maintenance and education of such indigent orphan children under tne age of fourteen years, in the said county of Rock and state of Wisconsin, as in the judgment of my said executors may be most needy and deterving: said income of said five thousand dollars to be so used and applied as above, until the year nineteen hundred, and then the said sum of five thousand dollars is to be given to such indigent, orphan children, in Rock county, Wisconsin, as my executors shall think most needy and deserving.

By the will the testator appointed Mark Ripley and N. N. Jackman, of Rock county, to be the executors of his will. The executors named in the will have both resigned, both as execuors and as trustees, without having entered upon the active execution of the trust created thereby, and the appellant Rexford has been appointed executor with the will annexed, and trustee under the will. The questions raised are: (1) whether the will creates a valid trust, and (2) whether the trust can be executed by a trustee appointed by the court. The circuit court held: (1) "that the fifth paragraph of said will is void for indefiniteness and uncertainty" (2) "that the trust created by the fifth paragraph of said will cannot be executed by the defendant, John G. Rexford, he not having been named as executor in the said will." The trustee appeals.

NEWMAN, J. (1) Is the fifth paragraph of the will too indefinite and uncertain in its provisions as to who are to be its beneficiaries to create a valid trust for charitable uses?

One of the essentials of a good bequest for a public charity is that there shall be some uncertainty as to who shall be its beneficiaries. For, it is said that if a gift is made for a public charitable purpose, "it is immaterial that the trustee is uncertain, or incapable of taking, or that the objects of the charity are uncertain. Indeed it is said, that the vagueness is, in some respects, essential to a good gift for a public charity; and that the public charity begins where uncertainty in the recipient begins. Courts look with favor upon all such donations and endeavor to carry them into effect, if it can be done consistently with the rules of law. Charitable bequests are said to come within that department of human affairs where the maxim, ut res magis valeat, quam pereat, has been, and should be applied." Perry on Trusts, sec. 687; Dodge v. Williams, 46 Wis. 70; Gould v. Taylor Orphan Asylum, id. 106. So, it is no objection to the validity of this bequest that its beneficiaries are uncertain. Perry on Trusts, secs. 731, 732. The necessary power of the selection of the beneficiaries resides in the trustees. And it is the duty of the court to uphold this bequest, if it can be done consistently with the rules of the law. The scheme of the charity is definite and clear. It is only the beneficiaries who are uncertain. It must be considered to be a valid charitable bequest.

(2.) Can the trust be executed by a trustee appointed by the court in the place of those named in the will?

The will is to be so construed as, if possible, to carry out the charitable purpose of the testator. There is nothing in the will to indicate that the testator intended the charity to fail, in case the executors whom he named declined to act. The gift is absolute, and its appropriation to the charity proposed is specific, and the general scheme plain and clear. There is nothing in the nature of the bequest or its object, and no such inherent difficulty in the execution of the scheme as to suggest that the testator intended the charity to fail if the executors failed to act. Such an interpretatton of the will is contrary to, the spirit of the maxim ut res magis valeat quam pereat. No doubt the court should, if necessary, act upon a liberal principle of construction in order to uphold the bequest. Cases cited above.

This will creates a mixed trust and power. The power joined with the trust, in such a case, is imperative and must be exercised. A trust to distribute the trust funds according to the discretion of the trustee is an imperative trust and power, and must be executed. If the trustees neglect or refuse to execute such trust and power, or die without performing them, courts of equity will execute them, or compel them to be executed. Perry on trusts, sec. 20 and sec. 473; Osborne vs. Gordon, 86 Wis. 92.

Whether then, this trust and power was to be executed was not within the discretion of the trustees. Its performance was imperative upon them. It is the duty of courts of equity to see to it that it is performed. For that purpose a new trustee may be appointed with the same powers as those named in the will. There is nothing in the will to indicate that the trustees named in the will were selected on account of any special confidence or fitness for the matter of this trust. The predominant purpose, evidently, was to establish the charity proposed. Independently of the statue, a court of equity would appoint a new trustee to carry the trust into effect. Under the statute—2098 S. S.—authority ample, if needed, is given. That act provides that "whenever any trustee appointed by the party creating the trust, shall decline to act as such, the circuit court may appoint a new trustee in his place, and vest in such new trustee all the powers and all the title to the property, within the jurisdiction of such court, which would have been possessed by, or vested in the original trustee, if he had accepted the trust.' The words of the statute are plain and not open to construction. They must be given effect according to their obvious meaning. The words are general, and were intended to cover every case where a trustee appointed by the party who creates the trust declines to act. It includes this case. No doubt this statute is to be be taken into consideration in the construction of this provision of the will. It should be deemed that the testator had this provision of the statute in mind when he executed the will, and for that reason made no provision, in his will, for the contingency which has actually happened, of the failure of the trustees appointed by him to act. Statutes are often construed into contracts and given force as a part of the contract. Streubel vs. Ry. Co., 12 Wis. 67-74; Smith vs Cleveland, 17 Wis. 556-568; Reilly vs. Ins. Co., 43 Wis. 449-457. There seems to be no just reason why they should not be given a similar effect in the construction of a will, especially where there is nothing in the will itself tending to show that such a construction would be contrary to the intention of the testator.

The judgment of the circuit court is reversed and the cause remanded with direction to construe the will in accordance with this opinion The costs are to be paid out of the estate. The plaintiff has no interest in the controversy, and is not entitled to costs.

distinction is equally welcome. This church is the only institution which stands free from all narrow limitations, ready to take a hand with anyone in helpful work. This platform is the only open, free, unfenced platform in the city where the voice of any deeply earnest man can be raised in defence of any human cause. Small as we are, we belong to the future. We are in the advance. No social, industrial, moral or religious problem can arise in this city without receiving the intelligent and sympathetic consideration of this church.

If for nothing else, we are needed as a center of helpfulness and fellowship for the people who for any reason whatever, are turned away the doors of ecclesiastical institutions.

In his sermon yesterday, Mr. Pence drew some very impressive lessons from the life of "doubting Thomas." The evening sermon was on the effects of unbelief, and the text was Psalm 17:22. "Because they believed not in God, and trusted not in His salvation." Some of the effects spoken of are superstition, pessimism, materialism, moral deterioration, and practical atheism. These can only be wiped out and cured forever when the heart and life is given up to Jesus.

The two story frame residence on South River street owned by John Kirk, and occupied by Wallace Tuffts and John Kelly, caught fire from an overheated stove pipe Sunday afternoon and damaged to the extent of $500. In all probability the residence will not be repaired. Mr. Kirk had $500 insurance on the house.

The residence of Timothy O'Rourke, near the gas works, was damaged to the extent of $25 Saturday night, the fire catching from the stove. At 3 o'clock Sunday morning the fire again blazed up, and a second alarm was in. O'Rourke lived in the house alone.

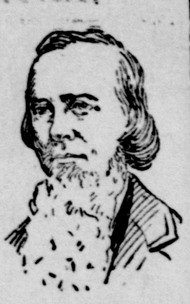
THIS DAY IN HISTORY.



EX-GOV. BROWN.

1750—Marshall Saxe (Hermann Maurice, count of Saxe), a Saxon general who became marshal of France and the hero of Fontenoy, died in Chambord; born 1696.

1878—George Henry Lewes, philosophic critic, essayist and biographer, husband of George Eliot, died in London; born 1813. Lewes' early life was passed in mercantile pursuits. After studying in Germany he returned to London and met with instant success as a writer upon philosophical questions. The literature of philosophy and science became his special work, and his biographical history of philosophy is a standard in that field. He wrote lives of Goethe and Robespierre and made excursions into general literature as well.

1894—Joseph Emerson Brown, ex-governor of Georgia and ex-United States senator, died at Atlanta; born 1821.

THE WATER CASE.

What a rush there has been since last week, to get on the winning side of the water case! Nothing has equalled it since the "original McKinley men" stood up to be counted last June.

The proposition to buy the water works will be buried under the largest majority ever given in the city, and the schemers who have been prodding and poking and pushing the people into costly litigation, see it. Having realized at last that their work is in vain, they are straining every nerve to justify themselves before the vote is taken.

The Recorder, which has been spokesman for the schemers right along helps them out. It never has favored the suit, it explains with delightful ingenuousness, and it is at loss to know who really has favored it. The suit must have begun itself. As for purchasing—the idea is preposterous! The Recorder has never favored it for a moment.

The Recorder finds quick transformations like this tolerably easy after its experience in the last campaign. But will the rest of the men who have saddled the city with $5,000 in court costs and attorneys' fees find the "presto—change" process as natural and satisfactory?

DEMOCRATS IN THE CABINENT.

It will not be forgotten by the McKinley administration that the gold democrats did a grand work for honest money, orderly government and the perpetuation of republican institutions in the recent canvass. Probably none of them wants to go into the McKinley cabinet; perhaps none will be offered a cabinet place. Still, an appointment of this sort would not be an entirely new departure. Hayes gave the office of Postmaster General to a democrat, and Lincoln for a short time between his election and inauguration thought of one or two democrats in connection with places in his official council. Two of Washington's original four constitutional advisors belonged to his own party and the others to the opposite side, but party lines were not definitely drawn when these appointments were made.

Joe Blackburn has drawn a public salary so long that it goes hard with him to have to give it up. Knowing his re-election to be impossible, he has began scheming for the democratic nomination for governor. His antics in the last campaign ought to make him an easy man for the republicans to defeat.

The effort to get Mr. Cleveland to place fourth-class postmasters under the civil service rules should have been made earlier; then its promoters might have escaped the charge of merely trying to keep democrats in office, which is now very properly brought against them.

Those who know and admire the ability displayed by Chairman Hanna in the campaign need hardly be told that the fool-talks printed as his recent utterances are fakes pure and simple.

Christmas is now the time set by Gen. Weyler for his great victory over the Cubans. When Christmas comes it will be an easy matter, if he hasn't been driven out of Cuba, for him to set a new date.

About the only way this government will get any redress from Spain for the property of Americans destroyed in Cuba will be to use force.

Dick Croker will find it much easier to stay out of politics than to try to get the Tammany animal into racing trim again.

Bryan is a striking example of the difficulty in dropping the talk habit after once acquiring it.

MAIL FOR THE ARCTIC CIRCLE.

How Letters Reach the Whaling Fleet in the Far North.

At the office of the Pacific Steam Whaling Company is a series of four rude paintings illustrating the winter quarters of the ten vessels that annually sail into Mackenzie bay, in the Arctic ocean, and "lay to" to permit the freezing waters of the bay to hold them safe and fast till another season opens up, says an exchange.

Five hundred men find lodgment in these vessels, and from convenient storehouses, erected on the adjacent shores, draw such supplies as may be needful in addition to what the hunting and fishing of the region may afford.

It may be imagined that these men lead a solitary life, remaining sometimes five years on a voyage, and as many of them have homes and families elsewhere their task becomes a dreary one.

Once a year vessels leave San Francisco to go thither, carrying supplies to them, and then come the treasured letters from home and dear ones. This usually occurs about the 1st of August. But last Christmas a variation came in the monotony of their lives. In September a missionary to the Point Clarence Indians passed by way of Mackenzie bay overland for Montreal on business. It was his intention to return some time about Christmas, and the inhabitants of the winter quarters at Herschel island exacted of him that on his return he would bring them letters. Accordingly each man was at much pains to write a letter informing all his friends of the fact that letters addressed to him at Fort Edmonton, Northwest territory, in care of the missionary would reach him safely.

The journey from Point Clarence to Fort Edmonton is by no means a pleasure jaunt. As long as there is snow and ice to travel over it is pleasant enough, but once out of the Arctic circle into the desolate region rock-ribbed with mountain fastnesses, rushing torrents in narrow gorges, clefts between high ranges, lakes crossed in rude batteaus hastily constructed, make up this country. Through forest and over plain must the journey be made a distance of over 1,500 miles It was accomplished in safety, however, and soon friends of the sailors in the north received letters inviting Christmas responses from home on the missionary's return.

The postal authorities were notified that all letters received should be forwarded to Fort Edmonton and held for the missionary. This was done, and when the brave traveler left Fort Edmonton on his return trip in November he bore with him a large package of letters addressed to the whalers at Herschel island.

It is not known yet if he accomplished the return trip in safety, but if he did and arrived before Christmas, as was expected, he carried joy to those isolated men in the words of good fellowship carried by him across half a continent.

IS IT A TRIFLE?

THAT COMMON TROUBLE, ACID DYSPEPSIA OR SOUR STOMACH.

Now Recognized as a Cause of Serious Disease.

Acid dyspepsia, commonly called heartburn or sour stomach, is a form of indigestion resulting from fermentation of the food. The stomach being too weak to promptly digest it, the food remains until fermentation begins, filling the stomach with gas, and a bitter, sour, burning taste in the mouth is often present. This condition soon becomes chronic and being an everyday occurrence is given but little attention. Because dyspepsia is not immediately fatal, many people do nothing for the trouble.

Within a recent period a remedy has been discovered prepared solely to cure dyspepsia and stomach troubles. It is known as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and is now becoming rapidly used and prescribed as a radical cure for every form of dyspepsia.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have been placed before the public and are sold by druggists everywhere at 50 cents per package. It is prepared by the Stuart Chemical Co., Marshall, Mich., and while it promptly and effectually restores a vigorous digestion, at the same time is perfectly harmless and will not injure the most delicate stomach, but on the contrary by giving perfect digestion strengthens the stomach, improves the appetite and makes life worth living.

MILLER IS IN JAIL FOR SIXTY DAYS

PLEADS GUILTY IN THE MUNICIPAL COURT.

Sheriff Appleby Learns That He Had Been An Inmate of the Local Bastile Once Before, When He Served Four Months For Attempted Highway Robbery.

Fred Miller, of Sheboygan, who fell into the cellar of Mrs. Thomas Tennant's residence, after forcing the window, Friday night, was in court this morning. A. C. Pond, whose house had been robbed by Miller, refused to prosecute but Sheriff Appleby appeared against him. Miller pleaded guilty to the charge, and Judge Phelps sentenced him to two months in the county jail.

Miller says he is twenty-five years of age. He said he had been working on a farmer near Milton and came to Janesville to buy clothes and shoes. He also bought whisky, and became crazy, he said. Sheriff Appleby says that he could not detect any evicence of drink when he arrested Miller, and Chief Acheson also testified that Miller showed no signs of intoxication.

Had Been In Jail Before.

Sheriff Appleby learned today that Miller had been an inmate of the Janesville jail before. During Sheriff Lear's term a number of Dane county prisoners were quartered at the local bastile. Among them was Miller, he having been sentenced, at Madison, to four months for attempting highway robbery.

While on the way to the jail Miller pretended to be drunk.

"I suppose you are going to take me to the police station," he said, to the officer.

"Yes," said the sheriff.

"Well, if I had a gun and two feet of space" Miller replied defiantly, "I would fix you so you could have a lot of fun with yourself."

Miller refused to tell much about himself, except to say that he left home three years ago, and had not seen his relatives since. He claims to have visited Janesville frequently while working for the Milton farmer, and says this was his first offence.

McKinstry Robbed Again.

A. B. McKinstry, of Elkhorn, who used to be in partnership with F. H. Haack, in this city, has been robbed three times within a short time. The third offence was committed a few days ago, but the shieves were caught. The Chicago Times-Herald says: "A. B. McKinstry, proprietor of a clothing store in Elkhorn, Wis., appeared at the Oak Park police station yesterday, and identified the clothing found in the possession of Frank Lacy and Wilbur Steele as his property. Word that the men were arrested was sent to Sheriff Hollister, of Walworth, and it is expected he will arrive in Oak Park today. Lacy and Steele will be taken back to Elkhorn for trial."

LAWYERS ARE ASKED FOR THEIR OPINION

THE GAZETTE SENDS OUT INQUIRIES.

All The Attorneys Who Are Not Interested Professionally In The Water Works Case Will Receive The Circular—Citizens' Views in The Matter Asked For.

The Gazette today mailed all the attorneys in the city who are not interested professionally, in the water case, the following letter:

Janesville, Nov. 30—Dear Sir:—The "water works question" is of vital interest to Janesville people at this time. Are you willing to give the people your opinion through the columns of The Gazette? This note is sent to all the attorneys in the city who are not interested in the matter, or associated with those who are. Envelope and blank are enclosed for reply. Very truly yours,
THE GAZETTE PRINTING CO.

The blank was as follows:

Editor Gazette:—In my opinion, the city of Janesville can buy the water works plant as proposed.

Editor Gazette—In my opinion, the city of Janesville cannot buy the water works plant as proposed.

Editor Gazette—I have not formed an opinion as to whether or not the city of Janesville can buy the water works plant as proposed.

.....

Editor Gazette—I do not care to express an opinion as to whether or not the city can buy the water works plant as proposed.

Letters were also written to Judge John R. Bennett, Judge John W. Sale, and Judge M. M. Phelps, asking them for an opinion, if they should fit to give it, and enclosing the same blank.

Use Citizens' Replies, Too.

The replies received will be published, and The Gazette hopes that all the lawyers will answer, as the matter is a serious one to the city and the people, and all will be glad to know what the lawyers of the city think of the question.

But the lawyers will not have the whole thing to do. In connection with their replies The Gazette will be glad to print all the suggestions and opinions that the citizens will send in. The communications must not exceed one hundred words in length, however, and must be signed by the writer. Citizens who have an opinion on the questions submitted to the lawyers are also invited to cut out the answers, sign their names thereto, and send them in.

Brevity is necessary, however. A local attorney who was asked if he thought the lawyers would answer the questions asked, said that he thought all of them would do so.

BUY A BIG BOILER FOR THE CAR LINE

OWNER BLABON WILL MAKE IMPROVEMENTS.

Increased Power Will Then Be Available and One of The Serious Defects In The Equipment of The Line Overcome—Run as Long as Both Ends Meet.

Some time before election, George W. Blabon, of Philadelphia, controlling stockholder in the Janesville Street Railway, wrote Supt. Cummins that if McKinley was elected and business conditions improved the Janesville car line would get the benefit of the change.

And it will.

Superintendent Cummins has received a letter from Mr. Blabon telling him that a new boiler would be bought and other minor improvements made.

One of the draw backs with the line has been the lack of power. The old boiler was but eighty horse power and had to be forced to do the work. The new boiler will be of one hundred horse power, which it is said, will be ample.

The letter says that the line will be operated all winter if running expenses are realized. Last week was the best week in two months. People who want the cars to run this winter should remember that every nickel counts and ride "early and often."

"Mr. Blabon seems to have confidence in the future of the city," Superintendent Cummins said today, "and will make all the improvements, etc., that the patronage warrants."

After a separation of half a dozen years Moody and Sankey have renewed their evangelical partnership and have been stirring big audiences in historic old Cooper Union, New York city. It was more than a quarter of a century ago that they began to work together, and for fully 20 years their names have been household words wherever the English language is spoken, yet they are hardly more than past middle age today. As a matter of fact, great reputations age more quickly than most of us realize. Mr. Moody speaks with all his old time fire and earnestness. He hits straight out from the shoulder, as usual, and is just as effective as he was in 1876, when he startled New York by swaying thousands in the old Hippodrome.

Mr. Sankey sings his psalms and hymns with the same vigor as ever. He has grown somewhat stouter and there is less hair on the top of his head than when he last appeared on the platform with Mr. Moody, but he can still sing "Pull For the Shore" in a manner to cause the most hardened sinner's breast to swell.

It was in 1871 that Moody and Sankey first met. They were both attending a Young Men's Christian association convention at Indianapolis. Mr. Moody had for a number of years been doing evangelical work in Chicago and had already attained some local celebrity. He was taking no prominent part in the convention, but was sitting in the audience, when his attention was attracted by the singing of a young man over in one corner of the hall. Swelling and rolling clear above the rest of the singers rose the voice that was destined to be heard clear round the world. Mr. Moody himself cannot sing at all and does not know one note from another, but he was struck by this voice.

"Who is that young man who is singing so?" he asked of a gentleman sitting beside him.

"Why, that's one of our Pennsylvania young men—Ira Sankey. He has a fine voice, hasn't he?" was the reply.

"I don't know anything about his voice," said Mr. Moody, "but I do know that he feels every word he sings and believes every word he feels. I'd like to meet him."

The meeting was arranged shortly after the session.

"Young man," said Moody in his blunt way, "I want you to come to Chicago and work with me."

"But I cannot leave my business in New Castle," protested Sankey.

"You'll have to give that up, then," said Moody.

"I don't know about that," replied Sankey dubiously.

"Oh, but I do," went on Moody. "Why, I've been looking for you for eight years."

At that time Mr. Sankey, then under 30, was working with his father at New Castle, Pa., as deputy collector of internal revenue. He was married and had one child. He had come to the convention as a delegate, intending to hurry back to his business. He did return to New Castle, but six months later joined Moody in Chicago. There they labored in the old Illinois Street church and Farwell hall until both buildings were destroyed in the great fire. Then came their famous trip abroad. Their first intention was to be absent but six months, but such tremendous audiences were attracted all through Great Britain that it was two years before they returned.

When they did come back, it was to begin that series of great revival meetings which were held in almost every city of importance from Portland to San Francisco. Just why they separated a few years ago has never been definitely stated, but there were rumors as to a disagreement between them in regard to the division of the profits on the Moody and Sankey hymn books, which have had such an immense sale. Whatever it was the difficulty has been patched up and Moody and Sankey are once more in the field.

People don't buy Stoves of us out of friendship. There is reason for it, several of them perhaps. Our Stoves are better and cheaper in price than other dealers. Broad assertion you think. but so, nevertheless.

None better than

The Jewel,

The Garland,

The Peninsular,

The Radiant Home.

OUR years of experience in the winter wants of people tells us the proper Stoves to handle. You run no experiment in buying a stove of us. You run no risk of paying too much for the Stove either.

Our store is the resort of economical people who buy:

Hardware, Clothing,

Tinware, Crockery,

Shoes, Glassware,

and articles for household uses. The Big Cash Store, on the corner saves you money on most anything you want to buy.

COSTUMES OF THE HOUR.

Light, Thin Materials Trimmed With Velvet—Beautiful Embroideries.

Choux and bows of velvet are more and more a la mode as adornments for gowns made of the lightest and most diaphanous materials. The belt and accessories of a gauze ball costume thus adorned are, of course, of velvet also. For young girls this fashion is particularly liked.

Costumes for receptions, dinners and grand gala occasions are often of brocade combined with gauze or mousseline de soie over the same color as forms the ground of the brocade. In these materials are toilets of the Louis XIII and Louis XVI order, with a train opening over a tablier. Skirts are also thus opened over panels of embroidery, guipure, old lace or brocade with large flowers. These panels having a broken surface, form a harmonious contrast to the plain velvet.

There are really wonderful embroideries in silk, with beads, spangles, jewels and metallic threads on velvet, satin, silk, tulle and lace. They are lavishly used in rich costumes and are of great expense.

The bolero form is the groundwork for most bodice ornamentation. Sometimes it is real, sometimes the shape is merely simulated by the trimming, but in all cases it is varied to suit the taste, slashed in, cut out, made narrow here and wide there, according as fancy dictates. Much of its effectiveness, when it is a separate accessory, depends upon the goods of which it is made. When it is of guipure, it is universally serviceable and may be worn over all kinds of corsages. In material having an openwork pattern it is also very effective.

The sketch given today shows a charming gown for dress wear composed of silver white silk, with a close design in mauve covering it. A ruffle of the silk, headed by a band of black ostrich feather trimming, borders the foot of the skirt, which is additionally ornamented at the sides and back by large bows of mauve satin. The bodice, of mauve plaited satin, has a bolero and corselet of black guipure, embroidered with jet over a lining of white satin. Both corselet and bolero are edged with black feather trimming. The close sleeves have a butterfly drapery at the top and a bow of white satin at the elbow. The collarette, of black ostrich tips, is closed by a bow of white satin, fastened by a buckle. A hat of mauve felt accompanies the gown. It is trimmed with draperies and bows of white satin and black plumes.

FANCIES OF FASHION.

Black Petticoats For Hard Wear, Elaborate Ones For Dress Occasions.

To accompany walking costumes the black petticoat is certainly the most useful and convenient. It may be of faille, taffeta, satin or less expensive goods, such as alpaca or moreen, and may be as elaborate or as simple as one desires. Taffeta is really as unsatisfactory a material as one can select for hard wear, especially for a petticoat, that is continually rubbed and chafed, for it breaks at the folds and becomes ragged while it is still new. Of course for carriage and dress wear petticoats of all brilliant and delicate colors, lavishly trimmed, are in fashion. They are adorned with black, white or yellow lace and ribbons or gauze. Persons who always wear black may adopt petticoats of heavy white silk trimmed with chantilly and black guipure, white or ivory lace being substituted on evening petticoats.

Bodices of liberty silks and other light goods will be worn all winter for dinner, theater and evening occasions. They require a lining of thin flannel unless an extra amount of underwear is worn with them.

Why is it that so many brides wear artificial orange blossoms instead of real ones? The latter are not difficult to obtain, as the orange tree grows and blossoms freely in an ordinary greenhouse. If the flowers are picked when they are fresh, the petals will not drop off at the critical moment, and the artificial blossoms cannot compare with the genuine ones in beauty, to say nothing of the delightful perfume.

The sketch shows a wedding gown of white satin. The skirt has a long train and is trimmed around the lower edge with a band of ostrich feather trimming. The tablier is outlined by ruffles of lace, fastened at the bottom by bows of white satin mixed with orange blossoms. The bodice has a fichu drapery of white gauze, bordered with plaitings, opening over a plastron covered with plaitings of gauze. The sleeves, of white satin, are wrinkled close to the arm throughout their length and have a small puff at the top. The puff and the wrist are each decorated with a spray of orange blossoms. Frills of plaited gauze finish the neck and wrists, and clusters of flowers are placed at the waist and throat.

We have sold a great number of these night dresses, have calls for them right along, and thus far this season, have disposed of about 40 dozen. That means quite a few night dresses, and the only thing that has made for us this tremendous showing is the price, quality and make of the goods. FREE TO EVERY MAN

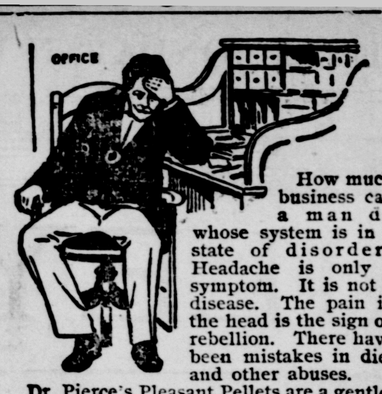
THE METHOD OF A GREAT TREATMENT FOR WEAKNESS OF MEN.

WHICH CURED HIM AFTER EVERYTHING ELSE FAILED.

Painful diseases are bad enough, but when a man is slowly wasting away with nervous weakness, the mental forebodings are ten times worse than the most severe pain. There is no let up to the mental suffering day or night. Sleep is almost impossible and under such a strain men are scarcely responsible for what they do. For years the writer rolled and tossed on the troubled sea of sexual weakness until it was a question whether he had not better take a dose of poison and thus end all his troubles. But providential inspiration came to his aid in the shape of a combination of medicines that not only completely restored the general health, but enlarged his weak, emaciated parts to natural size and vigor, and he now declares that any man who will take the trouble to send his name and address may have the method of this wonderful treatment free. Now when I say free I mean absolutely without cost, because I want every weakened man to get the benefit of my experience.

I am not a philanthropist, nor do I pose as an enthusiast, but there are thousands of men suffering the mental tortures of weakened manhood who would be cured at once could they but get such a remedy as the one that cured me. Do not try to study out how I can afford to pay the few postage stamps necessary to mail the information, but send for it, and learn that there are a few things on earth that although they cost nothing to get they are worth a fortune to some men and mean a lifetime of happiness to most of us. Write to Thomas Slater, Box 494, Kalamazoo, Mich., and the information will be mailed in a plain sealed envelope.



How much business can a man do whose system is in a state of disorder? Headache is only a symptom. It is not a disease. The pain in the head is the sign of rebellion. There have been mistakes in diet and other abuses.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a gentle, effective renovator and invigorator of stomach, liver and bowels. They assist nature without threatening to tear the body piecemeal. There are no griping pains, no nausea. One is a laxative.
